NOSTALGIA

Concerns over migrant workers and elderly can apply for new pensions

MIKE PETTY AND JAMES MILNER LOOK THROUGH THE CAMBRIDGE NEWS ARCHIVES AT SOME OF THE STORIES FROM THIS DAY IN THE PAST

Horrified by charters - 1962

HUNTINGDON'S ancient charters were kept in a muniments safe which lacked ventilation which had resulted in some of the documents deteriorating. And one had gone missing.

Archivist P.G. Dickinson said he was "horrified" when he saw the state of the Godmanchester charters. They were kept in a wooden case and were in a poor condition, needing immediate attention.

The famous King John Charter had been damaged by drawing pins and required attention, he reported.

Migrant workers - 1948

REFERENCES to the present position regarding the European volunteer workers was made at a meeting of the Cambridge employment committee.

At Warboys, a volunteer camp had been opened for the accommodation of volunteer workers in agriculture during the holidays and over 1,750 volunteers had spent periods in the camp since it opened.

The committee expressed anxiety with regard to the number of European volunteer workers unplaced at the West Wratting holding hostel and Mr Harding said he considered that the object for which these people were
